National Native American EMS Association
20th Annual Education Conference 2011
Tropicana Las Vegas Hotel & Casino
Las Vegas, NV
November 7 - 11, 2011

For twenty years the National Native American EMS Association (NNAEMSA) has committed to enhancing the quality of emergency services delivered to Indian Country. Through education, self-promotion and political action, NNAEMSA looks to the future and embraces opportunities to work with other emergency service stakeholders to build new models that will promote additional developments in Native American Healthcare.

The NNAEMSA Board of Directors is looking for sponsors to financially assist the organization in meeting the needs of emergency service providers in Indian Country. The National Native American Emergency Medical Services Association is a non-profit organization that promotes and educates the first responders that care for Native American people throughout the United States. NNAEMSA is currently solely funded by donations and is in need of sponsors to support our upcoming 20th Annual Conference. Attendees of the Annual Conference are emergency medical service professionals who function in and near Native American communities. They are field care providers of all skill levels, (EMTs, Paramedics, Nurses) as well as administrators and educators, and will represent tribes from across the country.

NNAEMSA is in need of partners that are able to provide financial support and opportunities to help NNAEMSA further their mission. NNAEMSA is poised to be a national voice on behalf of promoting the development of emergency services for Native American people.

The Annual Conference that is organized by NNAEMSA plays a critical role in educating Native American EMS Providers and those that serve Indian Country. By providing continuing education, leadership skills are enhanced and practitioner self-esteem is emphasized. Through a highly successful educational conference model, we are able to develop the cognitive and psychomotor skills of pre-hospital providers that serve on the front lines. NNAEMSA utilizes Native American EMS Instructors along with other noted EMS Instructors from across the nation to provide high quality continued education; and to provide the opportunity to network with other Tribal service staff for effective sharing of knowledge from our rural, and culture oriented Tribal communities. Support from sponsors help ensure that this valuable training continues and meets the ever-changing field of pre-hospital medicine on our reservations and in all Indian Country.

If you are interested in being a NNAEMSA Sponsor and/or would like to sponsor a portion of our 2011 Annual Conference specifically, please submit with the form below. Your donations are tax deductible and proof of our non-profit status will be given upon request.

Recognition for conference and general sponsorship will be given on the NNAEMSA website. Opportunities to undertake joint ventures with specific sponsors may be worked out on an individual basis. Sponsors who commit to sponsoring for the 2011 Annual Conference prior to Sept. 26, 2011, will be cited on the NNAEMSA website and will be included in specified conference materials disseminated at conference.
